

Tom Wright

Lake Fork Resources

Thomas S. Wright was born and raised in Wilmington, Delaware. After graduating from Southern Methodist University, he moved to Denver in 1982 to enroll in the Energy Economics MBA program at the University of Denver, which he completed in 1984.

Between 1984 and 1994, Tom worked in investment banking for oil and gas, provided advisory services to the Southern Ute and Jicarilla Apache Indian Tribes, and was a partner in two successful private equity backed E & P companies.

In 1994 Tom founded Lake Fork Resources, LLC, (LFR) an oil and gas company, of which he remains the President. LFR developed oil and gas drilling projects, advised and managed Section 29 tax credits for a large institutional investor, and completed acquisition and divestitures of numerous oil and gas assets. In 2012, LFR acquired assets in the Appalachian Basin through the acquisition of Alliance Petroleum Corporation, (APC) based in Canton, OH. Tom was the President and owner of APC.

In 2017, LFR sold Alliance Petroleum Corporation. APC owned and operated over 13,000 conventional oil and gas wells and employed 180 people. In 2016, he formed Sage Royalty, Inc., which owns royalty interests throughout the United States. LFR is currently participating in a drilling project in Utah and continues to evaluate acquisition opportunities.

Tom and his wife Anne enjoy travel and are members of the Ventana Canyon Golf and Racquet Club in Tucson, AZ, and have a home at the Old Baldy Club in Saratoga, Wyoming, where Tom is the Treasurer and a member of the Board of Directors. They are long time members of The Denver Athletic Club, members of Bethany Lutheran Church in Greenwood Village and support their charitable efforts through The Denver Foundation.
